

2013 BRODINGNAG BARBARIANS EMERGENCY INSTRUCTIONS

We will play the boards this year as always.

Vlad has pretty high expectations for this team, and the 2013 edition is built upon a three-legged stool. There are some Classic Brodingnagian big, lumbering fellows who use dead trees for bats. There is a bullpen that has 460 innings of good relief headed by three closer grades. And finally it also has a lot of uncharacteristically Barbarian speed. 170+ attempts with a SSN in the 30s, over 110 almost Gimmies with a SSN of 35. The second and third of these need managerial judgment to make the most use of them. These instructions provide some general philosophy and guidelines, but guidelines are never a substitute for judgment.

Attached are month-by-month emergency line-ups and rosters. While there is a decent chance I will pick up a waiver wire player, that should not affect these at least until September or October if at all. I will, however, plan on sending out modified lineups on occasion. I will try to let managers know by the 1st each month but please feel free to use the emergency line-ups if you have nothing by the 4th. Any changes will be the paranoid owner making minor tweaks, nothing major, and often made just to delude ourselves that we have any real control over the dice gods.

A Quick & Dirty Guide to the Positions:

CATCHER: Mauer starts all road games. David Ross will finish all away games. Both will be PA limited and between them they have over 800 PAs. Ross will generally come in sometime between the 7th and 9th innings. When a HR is needed he can PH for Mauer, then stay in the game. More often he will come in for defense after Mauer hits in the 7th or 8th. The goal is for Ross to get 1 PA every game, sometimes by PHing for Cabrerra or Nelson (and then staying in at catcher), sometimes after replacing Mauer. It's OK to go over the 1 PA per game if need be.

First Base: Depending upon your pitcher and whether David Ortiz is up, 1B will be Dunn or Davis. While both are slow there will rarely be an opportunity to PR run for them unless it is part of a multiple player shuffle (see below). When Dunn starts at 1B, Davis will usually be in LF. If Davis is replaced in LF for defense, Davis usually moves to 1B and Dunn to the bench.

Second & Short: As with the catchers, Nelson starts all road games at second, Cabrerra at short (NOTE: a few tailored lineups might have Ackley at 2B occasionally, but all emergencies have Nelson/Cabrerra). Ackley & Valdez will finish almost every game as the middle infield. When I'm ahead this is for defense, when I am trailing it is because Cabrerra has been PH for or to save PAs. Some mix of Fransden, Ross, Young, Werth, Dunn, Chisenhall, and Ackley will hit for Nelson and Cabrerra essentially every game. The majority of games they hit close enough to each other that the two pinch hits will occur in the same inning (not before the 7th), but if they don't, care should be taken to not use excessive bench in the process. If it's logical, Ross can PH for one of them and stay in to catch, with Ackley or Valdez taking Mauer's spot in the lineup.

Third: Most games this will be Rodriguez. A couple months Alex will be down and third will be covered by Chisenhall & Fransden. Sometimes Chisenhall will also play against tougher RH starters. Whoever starts will finish—there are more important bench moves to make.

Outfield: Rios starts every road game (except a few when he is the DH). Trout, every road game except when he is down in May. Werth all games vs LH starters. The rest are a combination of Davis & Young. Whoever starts should still be in the game to finish, but there may be some positional changes—especially Young or Werth coming off the bench in the outfield in place of Davis, with Davis shifting to first base, bumping Dunn out of the line-up.

Designated Hitter: The five months he is up, this is where Papi plays except vs some tough LH starters. The three months Papi is on the DL it will usually be Dunn, with a few scattered games by others. He who starts at DH, ends at DH. As with 3B, the bench fills bigger needs elsewhere.

The Bench:

Five bench players are up every month. In most games I expect at least 4 and often all 5 will be used. They are five carefully selected tools that have fairly well defined functions. All the bench players will be Plate Appearance limited and will come into almost all games.

Ross, Ackley, Young/Werth, and Valdez are the defensive caddies for Mauer, Ackley, Davis/Dunn, and Cabrerra. This is the main role of the bench.

There will be 2+ decent to good bats, usually Werth, Dunn, Fransden, Young, or Chisenhall. These along with Ackley and Ross should PH essentially every game for Nelson and Cabrerra. Hitting for Mauer is OK to either save PAs or because more power is needed in a critical situation. All have enough PAs to do this so use the ones that make the most sense. In blow-outs Ackley, Young, & Dunn should be the first choices since they have the excess PAs to burn.

Pinch running options: Ackley, Werth, Young. This will very, very rarely be done by itself though can be part of the multi-player shuffle.

Here is the challenge: between the 7th & 9th innings I want to bring in 3 or 4 gloves and replace Nelson, Mauer, Cabrerra, and often Dunn (Davis moving to first). This is for better defense but also to save plate appearances (not an issue with Dunn). I also want to maximize value of the bats and legs available off the bench players as the switches happen. To do that means assessing the situation--score, runners on, pitcher, etc. I trust you to look at the big canvas of the game and please use your judgment--planning the moves as part of an integrated dance, not individual events. I only ask that you try to keep to the intent as in many games there will not be a single "obvious right answer".

Offensive Strategy—the Bi-Polar Experience:

This team has over 200 useful SB attempts, a number of good H&R guys, and almost 250 homers. Most days the line-ups will be structured with a 4-5-6 of Ortiz, Davis and Dunn. They will play mostly Earl Weaver Ball. The others in the line-up provide an abundance of small ball opportunities. In the Excel spreadsheet there is a tab with the general rules for H&R, steal, and (gasp! Yes, bunting). This team will run much more than typical Barbarian teams. For much more detail see the spreadsheet.

For taking the extra base, use the Adams tables on the boards. Use your best judgment on the computer, being slightly aggressive with the speed guys.

Defensive Strategy:

The defensive subs are mentioned above. Some of the defensive strategies are thus:

Holding Runners: I generally hold runners unless it is pretty obvious I shouldn't. General rule of thumb: if your runner on first has an adjusted SSN of 22 or more and the game is within 4 runs (3 from the 8th inning on) I will hold the runner.

Pitch From Stretch: Similar to the above, the default is to pitch from the stretch if the tie/winning run is on 3rd. If it is before the 7th inning, do so if the adjusted SSN for a steal of home is 10 or better. From the 7th inning on, Adjusted SSN of 6 or better. If Kimbrell is on the mound, aa adjusted SSN of 3 or better.

Infield Depth: Play DEEP if any of the following apply:

- It is before the 7th inning
- The runner on 3rd is neither the tying run nor the lead run
- There are 2 outs
- The hitter has 3 or more 24s on the batter's card AND a DP will get me out of the inning

Other decisions: Reacting to double steals, dropping foul balls, intentional walks, etc. please do as you would for your team.

Notes: These are philosophical guidelines, not rigid rules. Generally I will make exceptions based upon shifts (if a batter has a big penalty it may temporarily shift the logic a column to the left, a big bonus, a column to the right). Also, if you have an exceptionally good or bad card at bat there is some leeway, etc.

Hard rules:

- Never leave a starter in long enough to affect his next start (this may allow more than 11.7 IP if there are days off or he's down next month)
- If it's a 1 or 2 run lead in the 9th+, Kimbrell is the pitcher
