Midwest on Offense

Bunt: Yep, we still like it. Given a decline in power this year, you should bunt any time the leadoff batter is on 2B, NO EXCEPTIONS. I want that runner at 3B. You can also bunt with no outs, runner on first, score +/- 1-2 runs in the fifth inning or later.

Hit and Run: We will need to manufacture runs this season, so do this a bunch. Any two-31 hitter with a runner on first who has SBA can do so throughout the game. Especially consider doing this when the runners with double digit stolen base attempts are on base. It is OK to H-R with runners on first and third as long as there is only one out.

Stolen Base: Any runner who still has double digit SBA can steal in the 7th inning or later if the score is -1 run and getting one of these guys to 2B increases my ability to tie the game up. Otherwise, continue to hit and run.

Runner Advancement and Throws: Use the chart for advancing on the bases, and throw to bases as you would for your own team. I trust your judgment. Do not be afraid to be aggressive and possibly lose base runners; I like my runners to try for an extra base in a close game if their success rate is 41 or higher. In computer play, don't advance if the runner is not well around the base, and do not take extra bases on balls to left field.

Infield In: I never have good luck with this. So, limit this to the 8th inning or later, less than two outs, and Dawgs ahead by one to three runs.

Hold Runners/Stretch: Hold all runners at first as long as game is within four runs. If more than that, do not hold with LH batters at the plate. Always stretch with runners on base.

Player Usage: While the players are not great, there are lots of games available. The only restriction is that the starting catcher plays the whole game for the start of the season. Everyone else may be used off the bench whenever it gives me an advantage. Shifts are not too bad this year, but if we need a better hitter or a pinch runner in a key situation, don't be afraid to go to the bench. As Clay always says, it is a 25 man roster and I want you to use it to my best advantage. I will never question anything you do to try to win a game for me.

Everything else is your judgment. Play my team as you would yours. Within the restrictions listed above, play to win today's game.

Midwest Pitching (yes, an oxymoron this season)

The stars are gone and this is a rebuild. I upgraded the bullpen with youth, but it lacks a true stopper. And there is no need to describe the starters. They are pitiful. Your job is to get through each game as best you can within the confines of this limited staff.

Basic parameters (not rules, but strong suggestions) for starters

1. Starters try to go five unless pounded out of the game.
2. Davies, Nicolino, and Owens can be reduced twice before but should be removed on the third reduction.
3. Hellickson, Simon, and Harang can be reduced once but should be removed on the second reduction.
4. Starters pitching a shutout should not be removed until they give up an earned run.

It is a semi-staple job I am asking you to perform; if it looks like I am out early, then let the starter go until pounded. If the game is close, have a quicker hook and go to the bullpen.

Bullpen roles are as follows:

1. Madson is the closer. Limit him to one inning saves.
2. Rivero and Garcia rotate as the seventh and eighth inning set up men, one inning each per game as the season begins.
3. Duensing, Gomes, Perkins, and Rodney cover the fifth and sixth innings one inning at a time. They can be brought in with two outs to elevate the grade to get the staff out of a jam. Lohse fits in this category when he is on the staff as a reliever.

4. Morin and Hale, with Lohse once his 28 innings as a 10 are used up, are the early blowout and long guys. Hale and Lohse will not relieve in the same month when they are starting except as listed in the lineup instructions. Bottom line is rotation of all the relievers to keep their innings fresh. I have over 500 innings of relief at present, but the starters are so bad that this may not be enough. There might have to be a trade in September to fix that problem.

That's it, gents. Play my team as well as you can. Play to win today's game and worry about tomorrow's game tomorrow. If a move appears to jump out at you in the proper moment, seize the day, take the chance, and give it your best shot. Best of luck to you all this season. You won't need much against my boys!!
